For James Pease · before Tuesday 17 November

Your Leadership Pillars tool is ready to try.

Six pillars. One honest conversation a month with each head. Two short videos, then the tool itself. Everything inside is sample data, so you can't break anything.

One thing before Tuesday: run Tom Ashby's practice session from start to finish. About 20 minutes. The rest is optional.

Start here

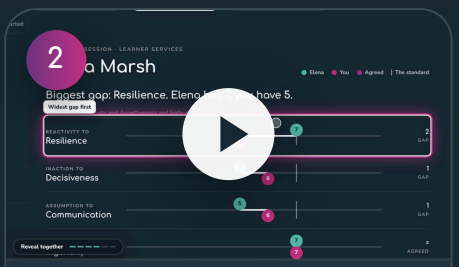

2½ MINUTES

Why it works

What it gives you, why the head scores first, and why these six pillars.

Play

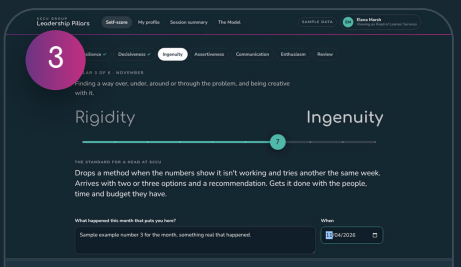

90 SECONDS

How to run a session

One full session, from the self-score to the one-page summary. Every click.

Play

ABOUT 20 MINUTES

Open the tool

It opens in your browser. Nothing to install and no login.

Open

THREE WAYS TO TRY IT · SCCU-LEADERSHIP-PILLARS.VERCEL.APP/START

2 MINUTES

See a reveal

Open Session and pick Dev Okafor. Both sets of scores are already in. Press Reveal both sets.

20 MINUTES · THE ONE TO DO

Run Tom Ashby's session

Open Session and pick Tom. Press "Fill sample scores", then Lock my scores. Reveal, agree a score on each pillar, pick one focus and set the assignment.

10 MINUTES · OPTIONAL

Be a head

Click your name, top right, and choose Elena Marsh. Score yourself on all six pillars the way a head will.

THE SIX PILLARS, EACH FROM ITS OPPOSITE

REACTIVITY	INACTION	RIGIDITY	AVOIDANCE	ASSUMPTION	INDIFFERENCE
Resilience	Decisiveness	Ingenuity	Assertiveness	Communication	Enthusiasm

It's all sample data

The five heads are made up and it saves in your browser only. Please don't enter real heads yet. Reset the demo from your name menu. Your own examples stay.

Who sees the scores

A head sees only their own. You and Scott see every head's. In this demo you can switch between people from your name menu.

The time it takes

About 20 minutes together with each head, once a month. Scoring beforehand takes each of you about ten minutes.

Two asks. Tell Callum anything that feels clunky or doesn't sound like you. And send him one example of your own for each pillar. A line each is enough.

Tuesday: three minutes to show it, three decisions to make.

THE THREE-MINUTE DEMO

1 30 SECONDS

The team picture. Click your name, choose Reset the demo, then click it again and choose Scott Riddell. One screen shows each head's latest agreed scores against the standard, and the team's weakest pillar.

2 90 SECONDS

The reveal. Switch back to yourself. Open Session, pick Dev Okafor and press Reveal both sets. Scroll down and open the first pillar, the biggest gap. His example and yours sit side by side, with the questions to ask underneath.

3 60 SECONDS

What the head takes away. On Team, press Summary next to Priya Nair. One page: scores, evidence, one focus, one assignment. Then open Profiles and pick Priya to show six months of movement.

THREE DECISIONS FOR SCOTT

DECISION 1

Who starts, and when

Every head from the first month, or two heads first. Real sessions begin once the version with logins is ready.

DECISION 2

Who sees the scores

Confirm that a head sees only their own, and that you and Scott see every head's. Decide whether anyone else should.

DECISION 3

Who scores you both

You and Scott are scored on the same six pillars, kept apart from the heads. Self-score only, each other, or Callum.

20 + 10

Minutes it costs, per head, per month. About 20 minutes together, plus about ten minutes for you to score beforehand. The head spends the same. With five heads that is about two and a half hours of your month.

Built and working today

- The full session: self-score, blind score, reveal, agree, focus, assignment.
- All the content: six pillars, 18 traits, the written 3, 5, 7 and 9 for each.
- The team view, each head's profile and the one-page summary.

Next build, after Tuesday

- ○ A login for each head. Today anyone can switch person from the name menu, so hidden scores are hidden by role only.
- ○ Saved history from month to month, and your real heads of department.
- ○ The integrity gate. The demo always shows a pass.